

Berlin, 31 March 2022

Press release

A fresh start for springtime

Easing of Covid-19 measures | Free Tierpark Berlin admission for refugees

In view of the new rulings made by the Berlin Senate, many pandemic-related measures are also being lifted at Zoo and Tierpark Berlin:

- The obligation to wear a mouth and nose covering no longer applies in the animal houses and the Aquarium. The only place where medical masks are still required is in the Tierpark's walk-through Lemur Woods, which is now open once again.
- All animal houses at the Zoo and Tierpark are open (except the Pig House and Penguin House at the Zoo).
- Prior booking of a time slot for Zoo and Tierpark annual pass holders is no longer required. Due to the Aquarium's current limited visitor capacity, however, Aquarium Berlin annual pass holders are still required to register their visit online in advance. It is also still necessary for day-ticket visitors to book time slots.

For further information and an overview of the coronavirus measures in place at Zoo, Tierpark and Aquarium Berlin, visit <https://www.zoo-berlin.de/en/services/corona-pandemic> and/or <https://www.tierpark-berlin.de/en/services/corona-pandemic>.

Free admission to Tierpark Berlin for refugees

As a show of support for refugees from Ukraine, Tierpark Berlin is currently granting free admission from Monday to Friday (not including public holidays) to holders of a Ukrainian passport or the appropriate Ukrainian travel documentation. They simply need to present their document at the ticket booths. Any accompanying persons must pay the regular admission price. This offer is only valid for Tierpark Berlin; Zoo and Aquarium Berlin are unable to participate because of high visitor numbers within a smaller space.